

The New Idea that does away with the Greatest of Corset Discomforts

R & G ABDOBAND

Do not Compress but Support the Abdomen

The "ABDOBAND" holds the abdomen in the normal position and positively prevents the corset from riding up. It takes the strain from the hose supporters and prevents the tearing of the hose.

The feature is a band fastened to the inside of the corset, the ends of which protrude through slits and fasten with buckles on the outside of the corset next to the hips.

You will find the R & G "ABDOBAND" Corset by far the most satisfactory relief from corset discomfort and inconvenience.

A SMART HAT.

There seldom can be found any more becoming combination than that of a hat of black satin trimmed in white ostrich feathers. The hat above is an example of this. It shows the new high crown effect flaring slightly around the face to produce a fascinating semi-poke effect. Close to the edge of the brim is laid a border of white ostrich feathers and placed directly up the back of the hat, high above the crown, are two beautiful plumes of the same. Around the crown, above the feather border, is a plain band of black velvet ribbon.

GOOD THINGS TO EAT

When the little folk of the house are hungry—and they always are—it is much better to take the keen edge off their voracious young appetites with something nourishing than it is to satiate them with sweets. Many mothers keep at least one such dish on hand, and when the children, home from school, clamor for a "piece," they preserve their health and dinner appetites by giving them something sensible as well as good.

Chicken Broth.

Remove the skin and fat from a chicken and chop it up, bones and all, into small pieces. Add some salt and a quart of boiling water, cover it and simmer it for two hours. Then allow it to stand for one hour, still covered, after which strain it through a sieve. This is one of the most wholesome and strengthening dishes a child can have.

Chocolate Blanc Mange.

Mix a quarter of a cup of granulated tapioca, one and a quarter teaspoonfuls of salt and a quarter of a cup of granulated sugar, and pour on to it gradually one and a half cups of hot cocoa. Put it in a double boiler for about twenty minutes, then remove it from the fire and add to it a quarter of a teaspoonful of vanilla. Pour the mixture into cold molds and serve it with cream or custard.

Baked Apple.

Why does one associate baked apples with a shapeless mass of pulp? Is it not because they are so often overdone? They are put in the oven and left to their own devices. To obtain them in perfection, peel the apples thinly, keeping them in as nice shape as possible; then remove the core. Make a syrup by boiling two ounces of loaf sugar with a gill of water. Put the apples in a deep dish, and pour the syrup all over them. Put the dish in the oven. Baste the apples frequently with the syrup, and when they feel just tender when pierced with a skewer, put them onto an apple dish, pouring a little of the syrup over each. Whip cream. It will just hang on the fork, sweeten and flavor to taste. Then fill in the center of each apple with it, heaping it up a little.

THE DAILY CHIT-CHAT.

By Ruth Cameron.

"I think my mother ought to be called the 'where is it lady,'" a quaint little boy once commented.

He was the youngest of a large family, and he had heard his mother so often appealing to him in this way by the various members of the household that he had good reason for his suggestion.

I fancy there are a good many homes in which "the where is it lady" might be one of the house mother's titles.

For I have myself observed not a few families where the habit of appealing to mother to find anything which does not come readily to hand is a fixed one.

Now, of course, a mother's mind would naturally be the best index of the home and a mother is inevitably a last resort to which to appeal when anything simply cannot be found.

But here's the rub.

I think she should be kept as a last and not a first resort.

And a first resort is what she is frequently made. It is so much easier to say "Where is so-and-so?" and to throw the responsibility onto mother's mind than to use your own brains. It is so much simpler to say "I can't find something or other" and have mother come down or up and help you hunt than to go poking about by yourself, that many of us get into the habit of making no effort to do anything else.

"What have you done with that magazine I was reading last night?" cries a father when he awakes. "It's gone and I was right in the middle of a story." And mother patiently sets up and finds it right under father's elbow, hidden only by a newspaper.

"Where on earth is the tie that goes with my dress on this day?" cries another mother, and she finds it hanging on the back of a chair, where she left it the last time he went to a wedding.

"Mother, I can't find my pumps anywhere. I'm sure Bridget did something with them when she swept." Fuminate big sister. And mother leaves her sewing and locates the pumps in the closet, hidden only by a pile of old hats.

Right where big sister might have found them very easily herself if she had only really tried before she called mother.

"Where is the milk bottle? How can I go and get the milk if you don't tell me where who the milk bottle empties into?" cries a baby when he awakes. "It's gone and I was right in the middle of a story." And mother patiently sets up and finds it right under father's elbow, hidden only by a newspaper.

And all this means that that mother who is called "the where is it lady" is really a very busy woman, and that hunting for things means—and my dear, I think there is nothing more tiring than hunting for things—which should be distributed over the shoulders of the whole family.

Now I believe that "I can't find it" and "Where is it?" are habits that all children should be kept from.

New Way to Remove Age Marks From Skin

(Moderns Style.) By discarding powder and cosmetics and using a maytane lotion it is an easy matter to gradually remove wrinkles and facial blemishes and to an aged, lumpy or uneven skin the rich embellishment of youthfulness. The lotion which is made by dissolving a small package of maytane in eight ounces of witch hazel.

Before using, the skin should be thoroughly cleansed of dust, grease, and then the lotion gently massaged into the face, neck and arms with the skin is dry and smooth. With the aid of the maytane lotion the skin is freed of pimples, blackheads and other imperfections, and the skin grows firm and smooth and takes on an exquisite texture.

Crema Simon

On chapped hands and lips, rough skins, etc., are really marvelous. In a few hours these slight redness, stings are immediately relieved by using this cream, which is also invaluable for the extremely delicate skin of the children. The "CREMA SIMON" is most excellent for use after shaving for softening the skin.

SPECKLED EFFECTS THE LATEST FAD

It may be the aftermath of the chancier craze, but there is a decided tendency among the novelty lovers for speckled effects. This is seen in gray and white, black and white, gray and black, blue and brown, and all possible mixtures of feathers brightened by dashes of blue and scarlet. Newer yet are muffs and stoles of "panther skin," which are as costly as they are startling.

This same speckled touch is shown in some of the new gauze and chiffon veils for motoring. At which signifying horizon the impetuous oculist does "chorio" in his joy.

Much prettier are the speckled scarves, especially when the speckling is in flecks of gold and silver on pale backgrounds of gauze or liberty silk.

The effects of "Crema Simon" are really marvelous. In a few hours these slight redness, stings are immediately relieved by using this cream, which is also invaluable for the extremely delicate skin of the children. The "CREMA SIMON" is most excellent for use after shaving for softening the skin.

Household Hints.

Iodine stains yield to a bath in alcohol followed by a rinse in soapy water. Oil stains should be rubbed over with lard, allowed to stand for several hours, then washed with cold water and soap. Do not allow soiled clothes to remain long in the closet or laundry basket or they will take on a grimy, dull appearance hard to overcome. The flavor and texture of potatoes are spoiled if they are allowed to remain in the sun. When cooking potatoes in their jackets pierce them with the prongs of a silver fork.

White Gaiters Are Worn.

The woman who has pumps and does not wish to get high shoes until late in the winter can now use her cloth gaiters and be very much in style. White ones are quite the fashion, and their rivals are pearl gray. These are worn with the black shoes with all kinds of gowns that are short and for the street.

The Gable Hat.

One of the new shapes in millinery that has been brought out recently is called the gable, because it is shaped just like a gable house. Its two sides slant down sharply from the top of the head to below the ears, and the trimming is usually a daring and defiant bow perched on one side.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD

Bulletin:
DIRECT TRAIN SERVICE TO DOWNTOWN NEW YORK.

The operation of electric service, since October 1, from Manhattan Transfer through to the Hudson Terminal Station by the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Hudson and Manhattan tubes gives passengers from Washington a practically direct service to the financial and business district of lower New York city.

Previous to October 1 it was necessary to transfer to a steam train at Manhattan Transfer, and then to change at Jersey City to the tube or ferryboat. Now the only change required is a few steps across the platform at Manhattan Transfer to a waiting electric train, which delivers the passenger at Church, Cortlandt and Dey streets (Hudson Terminal), one block from Broadway, in sixteen minutes, without change at Jersey City.

This service obviates the old method of leaving the steam train at Jersey City, descending to the tube level, or waiting for a ferryboat, and not only greatly reduces the time in transit, but eliminates from the trip the physical discomfort of walking through the station at Jersey City.

The electric trains simply pick up the downtown passengers at Manhattan Transfer and carry them, after a quick and comfortable run, to the heart of downtown New York, from which every business building in that section is easily accessible by foot or the usual methods of mid-city transportation.

Passengers from any given train may reach downtown Broadway at practically the same time as those who kept the train to Pennsylvania Station can reach uptown Broadway.

Travelers who have business in the lower section of New York cannot fail to appreciate the easy and expeditious facilities of getting there which this excellent service provides.
